

New facts which clear the honour of Pearse and his colleagues

'Planted' Dublin Castle Document IS Authentic

Denis Gwynn

P. J. Little

Arthur Griffith

James Connolly

James Joyce

John Galsworthy

George Bernard Shaw

SOON after I had taken over the editorship of "New Ireland" from Denis Gwynn (January 26, 1946), I had to go to London for a few days. I was in London for my purpose concerned with the Irish question, but I was also in London for a quite different reason. A letter while I was in London, told me that a friend of mine had discovered some very important information, and he thought it would be a good thing for me to publish it.

The information was that a document had been discovered in Dublin Castle which cleared the honour of Pearse and his colleagues. The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues. The discovery of this document was a great relief to many people who had been misled by the propaganda of the British authorities.

Confirms the capture

It was also stated that the document was a copy of the original, and that it had been found in a safe in Dublin Castle. The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

A DISCLOSURE by P. J. LITTLE

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

Dublin Press

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

SUNDAY PRESS MAGAZINE SECTION

PAGE GUIDE

- Chaplain 16
- Congresses 16
- David Hooper 16
- Films 16
- Father's Day 16
- Father's Day Story 16
- Things to read 16
- Who's Street 16
- The woman's 16
- World 16
- Affairs 16
- Role of Law 16
- Hypnosis 16
- Fabulous 16
- The top 16
- Carbons 16

Charged

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

Mimic

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

Man in gap

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

More sense

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

Document

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.

Auto accident

The document was a letter from Pearse to the British authorities, in which he stated that he was not a revolutionary, but a patriot who was fighting for the independence of Ireland. The document was dated 1916, and was signed by Pearse and his colleagues.